

Börsig is the official distributor of C&K Switches

C&K offers a wide range of pushbuttons, rocker, toggle and rotary switches for a variety of applications. The high quality switches are recognized by electronic design engineers around the world, and almost a century after its foundation in 1928, C&K is still one of the best known and most trusted names in the E-Mech switch industry.

The electronic distributor Börsig from Neckarsulm now holds the official distribution rights for the high-quality, robust and reliable switch solutions.

C&K's products are used in the automotive, industrial, medical and consumer goods sectors, among others. More than 55,000 standard products and 8.5 million switch combinations are available for electronic product manufacturers.

C&K and Börsig

As an electronic distributor for electromechanical components, the family-owned company Börsig has been offering connectors, relays, switches, cables and other electrical components from premium manufacturers since 1969. The authorization as official distributor for the C&K switch solutions shows the manufacturer's confidence in Börsig as a sales partner. The products ideally complement the portfolio and so Börsig can offer its customers even more options in personal and technical advice.

What distinguishes C&K Products

Whether it's for a universal paddle switch assembly for a fire alarm, a compact start/stop button for a boat application, a switching mechanism for a surgical device with a specific actuation pressure, or a customized snap-action switch module with multiple positions for temperature adjustment, C&K delivers the best possible solution. C&K strives for complete customer satisfaction through continuous improvement and flawless performance. The company achieves this through a combination of automated assembly systems, ongoing training programs, internal audit teams, Six Sigma design methodology, process capability analysis, statistical process control and supplier quality initiatives.

Advantages at Börsig

Börsig stocks a large quantity of the worldwide known C&K switches, so that a high availability as well as short delivery times can be guaranteed. In addition, the products can be ordered from Börsig outside of packaging units and without a minimum quantity surcharge.
